MED-DESIRE project international conference: "A solar future in the Mediterranean"

Policy, technological and commercial challenges ahead of the actual deployment of solar energy systems in the Mediterranean area will be at the centre of the MED-DESIRE project international conference. The event, under the title "A solar future in the Mediterranean", is scheduled in the city of Bari (Italy) on March 31th and is open to the public.

Speakers representing public institutions, SMEs, innovation agencies and universities will highlight regulatory and technical good practices which could foster a better exploitation of the solar potential in the Mediterranean. In addition, the opportunities provided by the solar thermal market will be discussed.
